From the age of 12, I traveled the country speaking about homelessness and the importance of empathy. As a keynote speaker, I learned to move a crowd through tone, cadence, inflection and facial expressions. This is where I learned the art of conveying a story. Since then, I have been in over 30 films, including 2 feature-length independent films. At the University of Michigan, I have gained extensive knowledge of acting and filmmaking and spent the summer in New York working with students from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, NYU, Tulane, and more.
